

Austrian rock band to fly in

MELODIC rock band Cornerstone are playing in Newark on Sunday as part of a UK tour.

The Austrian band, who have also toured the US and played at many European festivals, will be at The Flying Circus, Castlegate, from 8pm.

The band will perform with Gary Howard from the Flying Pickets later this year and are well known for their part in the soundtrack of the film Little Alien.

Their song, Right Or Wrong, was named Ballad of the Year by British Rock Realms magazine and their version of the 80s-hit Smalltown Boy, by Bronski Beat, made the charts.

Money from this success was donated to the Room To Breathe campaign backing research and treatment into cystic fibrosis at Nottingham City Hospital.

In the past, the four-piece have appeared with The Animals, Hazel O'Connor, John Waite and New Model Army.

For more information on the band and to listen to some of their music, go to www.cornerstone.co.at

CORNERSTONE: Photo: Reinhard Mueller